Online Worship: Best Practices

Valley Green Valley 11:00 (Moderate Level): Valley's worship is a combination of in-person and online, using one of the least financially expensive means. The Rev. Craig Lindsey will introduce this session, that will include a 30-minute, pre-recorded video of how they do what they do, followed by a time for questions and answers.

Trinity Tucson 2:00 (Advanced Level): Join Sheila Croteau of Trinity Presbyterian Church in Tucson, Arizona as she takes you through their live stream journey which began in 2017 with a video encoder and camcorder to the advanced level of live streaming they do today. Utilizing a Blackmagic Television Studio switcher, PTZ Optics camera, BoxCast video encoder and Easy Worship software on a computer, Trinity has been able to provide meaningful, engaging worship for their members and friends. See them in action on a Sunday morning. Documents highlighting their process from beginning to end will be available for download. Dr. Mack Sigmon, whose vision began this process will provide an introduction.

Immanuel Tucson 3:30 (Moderate Level): An example of an alloy is zinc and copper melted together to create brass, a metal totally different and unique from both zinc or copper. Immanuel's pre-recorded online worship is an "alloy worship" service, meaning it brings together two expressions of worship, traditional and alternative, creating not a blended experience but something entirely different. The combination of the online context, multiple generations of contributors, and varied worship styles makes for a uniquely Reformed worship concoction that is also Reforming.
